

Parent Bulletin

Friday 10th November

Dear Parents

I enjoyed hearing about all your half-term activities, it was lovely to have the children back this week. I hope the parents' evenings went well for you; we feel the online format is more 'user' friendly but do let us know your own thoughts on this. We realise you haven't seen your children's books and so will be arranging time for you to see these and also see the classrooms. Our staff are always more than happy to meet with you face to face as necessary throughout the year.

Anti-bullying focus next week. While I dislike this phrase it is important, we all think about the way we behave; celebrate differences; show respect and be kind at all times. My mantra has always been treating others the way you would want to be treated. In the next few weeks, I will be sharing our updated behaviour policy with parents and pupils. A consistent approach is key for us all.

We live in a wonderful part of the country, and I was reminded of this recently by Sofia Khan in Year 3. Sofia entered a videography competition that was inspired by Surrey Heath's habitats and the plants and animals that live in them. They asked children to investigate the local area and document what they find. We're delighted and proud to tell you that Sofia won and was presented with a certificate by the Mayor of Surrey Heath! Her video was on display for a month in the Surrey Heath Museum in Camberley. You can view her beautiful, winning film here: <https://youtu.be/nyfcKvdg1E4>. A budding Sir David Attenborough!!

We held our remembrance service yesterday. Thank you to the school for the respect they all showed and to the parents who attended. One commented "Having served in the British Army for 16 years and attended many Remembrance Services around the world, I felt Lyndhurst truly captured the meaning of 'Remembrance.'"

Enjoy your weekend.

Best wishes
